Market Conditions

- On April 22, 2025, the Japanese yen briefly hit a seven-month high at 139 against the U.S. dollar, driven by investor anticipation of lower U.S. interest rates.
- In March 2025, around 1,423,400 Japanese traveled overseas, a 16.7 percent increase from the previous year, reaching 73.8 percent of pre-COVID levels. Narita Airport saw 3.05 million international passengers, or 95 percent of March 2019 levels, with 924,000 being Japanese passengers, 17 percent higher than the previous year and 65 percent of 2019 levels. For the second consecutive month, Japanese passenger numbers exceeded 60 percent of 2019 figures, signaling a gradual recovery in overseas travel demand, especially for short-haul Asian routes.
- A survey by Hankyu Travel International revealed that 51 percent of respondents plan to travel during summer vacation (late July to late August), nearly double the 26 percent planning trips during Golden Week (late April to early May). The main reason for summer travel was the ability to take longer vacations (54%).
- A survey by JTB Tourism Research & Consulting on "Life and Travel of Generation Z" found that Gen Z males (18-29 years old) are more interested in solo travel, traveling to pursue hobbies, and visiting Instagram-worthy locations. This suggests they prioritize personal time and staying connected with trends. In contrast, Gen Z females are more likely to travel for dining experiences, visit famous sightseeing spots, and explore SNS-attractive places, reflecting their desire to enjoy time with family and friends.
- Australia has made significant investments in the Japanese market through targeted campaigns, leading to a notable increase in its appeal among Japanese travelers. In 2024, the Cairns Tourism Bureau reported a 96 percent recovery compared to 2019. Contributing factors include a favorable exchange rate (1 AUD = 93 yen), the absence of a tipping culture, and expanded travel options beyond direct flights.

- In celebration of Lei Day, the #Love Hawai'i campaign was launched in partnership with Hawaiian Airlines, Outrigger Resorts & Hotels, and Cirque du Soleil 'Auana. The campaign will select two groups (four individuals total) via lottery to win a prize package including round-trip economy class tickets on Hawaiian Airlines, a three-night stay at Outrigger Waikiki Beachcomber Hotel, and tickets to Cirque du Soleil 'Auana.
- ANA and JAL have announced a reduction in fuel surcharges for tickets issued in June and July 2025. The one-way surcharge will be 40,800 yen for ANA and 37,000 yen for JAL.
- JAL held a limited-time international flight sale from April 16 to 23, 2025, offering travel from April 16, 2024, to March 31, 2026, with fares for the Japan-Honolulu route starting at ¥87,000.
