Statement by DBEDT Director Mike McCartney:

The month of April brought the highest recovery rate of visitor spending and arrivals since February 2020. It was also the 12th consecutive month in which visitor arrivals from the continental U.S. surpassed the same month's level in 2019. Daily spending by U.S. visitors increased by 24.5 percent, which supported our communities, businesses and state tax revenues.

In the next few months, we anticipate and are planning for the return of Japanese visitors. The increase of tour groups from Japan will allow us to continue our pivot towards educating all visitors about Hawai'i's culture and manage our state's resources so they can continue to remain healthy.

Factors playing into travelers' decisions on where to visit include competition from other destinations worldwide, inflation and currency exchange challenges, fuel prices, labor and supply chain issues, and competitive service and quality levels. To stay relevant and keep Hawai'i top of mind, it is vital to mālama our home so that it is a place where we want to live and others want to visit.

Continuing to remain vigilant by protecting ourselves and our communities from COVID as the case counts continue to rise is paramount. If we work towards a regenerative (next level of sustainability) stewardship (having the privilege of taking care of Hawai'i) model, together we can achieve healthy and vibrant communities, businesses and industries that support an enviable living in Hawai'i.

Statement by HTA President and CEO John De Fries:

Several international destinations across the globe remained inaccessible to U.S. travelers in the month of April, and Hawai'i continued to be a preferred destination for many of those travelers from the U.S. West and U.S. East markets. As we move into the summer months, we are anticipating a more robust recovery of our international markets, especially Japan.

HTA continues to work directly with communities across Hawai'i to implement the Destination Management Action Plans, and with our industry partners to reach visitors with educational messages before and after they arrive.

As tourism's recovery continues to fuel our local economy, HTA is guided by the overarching principle of Mālama Ku'u Home – to care for our beloved home. Remember, the cultural value of mālama signifies our kama'āina way of life, and a community-wide call to action that will enhance the quality of living in Hawai'i for generations to come.
